COURSE OVERVIEW

For over a decade, scholars have emphasized the need to place United States history in a broader transnational context, a process that involves transcending the boundaries of the nation state in favor of a more global perspective. This impulse now resonates at every level of our profession: at our professional conferences, in university presses, inside university administrations, and inside hiring committees. This reading seminar will examine the premises, objectives, and results of this ongoing endeavor. We will focus our attention primarily on the twentieth century and we will examine and evaluate innovative scholarship that follows American tourists, artists, music, missionaries, corporations, ideas, values, and goods beyond the borders of the United States and into the world.

REQUIRED TEXTS

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

GRADE BREAKDOWN: The following elements will constitute your final grade:

Attendance & Participation	(25%)
5 Reading Responses	(25%)
Comparative Book Review	(25%)
Conference Paper & Presentation	(25%)

CLASS ATTENDANCE AND PARTICIPATION

Class attendance and participation will account for 25% of your final grade. You are expected to come to class prepared to participate in discussions. Consistent lateness or missed classes will negatively affect your overall grade. You should email me in advance if you know you cannot attend class for any reason other than illness.

COMPARATIVE ANALYTICAL BOOK REVIEW

You are required to write one five-six page comparative book review during the course of the semester. Your review will be based on any two of the assigned readings. Depending on the books you choose, the review will be due on the day we discuss the second book in class. Analytical book reviews are not simply summaries of the book under review. You should certainly provide an overview of the authors' main arguments, but you should also analyze the following aspects of the work: how do these books fit into the broader literature? How successfully does each author make her or his argument? What evidence do the authors use, and what are some of the advantages and disadvantages of using those sources? What contributions has each author made to our understanding of American history by adopting a transnational or global methodology? What other issues have these authors chosen to ignore? Should the authors have addressed other issues? If so what should the authors have included and why? Finally, what possibilities for further research do these books suggest?

READING RESPONSES

You will write five two page responses to the readings over the course of the semester. These will be due on the day the book is discussed in class. You can choose which books to respond to, but they should not be the same two books that you choose to formally review. These responses should be brief and to the point and consider the following questions: What contributions has the author made to our understanding of American history by adopting a transnational or global methodology? Was the author successful? What possibilities for further research do these books suggest? You should also include 4-5 questions that you would like to discuss with the class, and be prepared to share these questions with your classmates at the beginning of our discussion.

CONFERENCE PAPER

At the end of the semester we will hold our own mini-conference. At the beginning of the semester we will form panels. Together, you and your panel will devise a broad theme and prepare a brief panel proposal. You can choose any theme whatsoever, as long as it addresses the effort to place American history in a global context. Each of you will also prepare a brief (1 paragraph) paper topic proposal, and you will submit the entire panel proposal to me by Wednesday, October 17. The conference will take place during the final two class meetings of the semester.

Your papers should be exactly 6 pages long (a 15 minute presentation). It should be based on primary sources, and should put forward a new transnational interpretation of a familiar event/moment in American history. These can be somewhat speculative, and good conference papers often are. Use your imagination, but ground your findings in the historical record.

DISCLAIMER

In the event of a major campus emergency, the above requirements, deadlines, and grading policies are subject to changes that may be required by a revised semester calendar. Any such changes in this course will be posted once the course resumes on Blackboard or can be obtained by contacting me via email.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES

CHEATING / PLAGIARISM

Plagiarism refers to the reproduction of another's words or ideas without proper attribution. University Regulations contains further information on dishonesty. Plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty are serious offenses, and will be treated as such in this class. You are expected to produce your own work and to accurately cite all necessary materials. Cheating, plagiarism, and other dishonest practices will be punished as harshly as Purdue University policies allow. Any instances of academic dishonesty will likely result in a grade of F for the course and notification of the Dean of Students Office.

Please make sure that you are familiar with Purdue's academic integrity policies:

GRIEF ABSENCE POLICY

Purdue University recognizes that a time of bereavement is very difficult for a student. The University therefore provides the following rights to students facing the loss of a family member through the Grief Absence Policy for Students (GAPS). Students will be excused from classes for funeral leave and given the opportunity to complete missed assignments or assessments in the event of the death of a member of the student's family.

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

Purdue University is committed to providing equal access and equal opportunity to university courses, activities, and programs for students with disabilities. Students with documented disabilities that substantially limit a major life activity, such as learning, walking, or seeing, may qualify for academic adjustments and/or services. If you have a disability that requires special academic accommodation, please make an appointment to speak with me within the first three weeks of the semester in order to discuss any adjustments. It is the student's responsibility to notify the Disability Resource Center of any impairment/condition that may require accommodations and/or classroom modifications.

To request information about academic adjustments, auxiliary aids, or services, please contact the Disability Resource Center in the Office of the Dean of Students, 830 Young Hall, (765) 494-1247 (V/TTY), drc@purdue.edu.

NONDISCRIMINATION POLICY STATEMENT

Purdue University is committed to maintaining a community which recognizes and values the inherent worth and dignity of every person; fosters tolerance, sensitivity, understanding, and mutual respect among its members; and encourages each individual to strive to reach his or her own potential. In pursuit of its goal of academic excellence, the University seeks to develop and nurture diversity. The University believes that diversity among its many members strengthens the institution, stimulates creativity, promotes the exchange of ideas, and enriches campus life.

Purdue University prohibits discrimination against any member of the University community on the basis of race, religion, color, sex, age, national origin or ancestry, marital status, parental status, sexual orientation, disability, or status as a veteran. The University will conduct its programs, services and activities consistent with applicable federal, state and local laws, regulations and orders and in conformance with the procedures and limitations as set forth in Executive Memorandum No. D-1, which provides specific contractual rights and remedies.

VIOLENT BEHAVIOR POLICY

Purdue University is committed to providing a safe and secure campus environment. Purdue strives to create an educational environment for students and work environment for employees that promote educational and career goals. Violent behavior impedes such goals. Therefore, violent behavior is prohibited in or on any university facility or while participating in any university activity.
