

WGSS 482

Interdisciplinary Studies in Sexuality

Informed by readings from across the humanities and social sciences, this course will consider how sexual desires, practices, and identities are theorized and studied in different disciplinary contexts.

SPRING 2022

Tuesdays and Thursdays: 9:00—10:15

3 credits | CRN 21325

Engage scholarship on human sexuality from a wide range of disciplinary perspectives

Explore contemporary issues related to sexuality, such as digital hookup culture, sexual health education, asexual representation, men's rights, sex work, and non-monogamy

Contextualize on-going political debates regarding sexual liberty; bodily autonomy; transgender, non-binary and intersex rights; LGBTQ parenting; reproductive justice; and more

More info: Email munt@purdue.edu

School of Interdisciplinary Studies

