Despite its importance for intelligibility and, therefore, communication, L2 phonology is an often-neglected aspect of language learning; in this course we will examine why it is important and what methods have been employed in a variety of languages. Theories of acquisition of L2 phonology will be explored, along with current and ongoing research. The course will culminate in a final project in which students propose original research projects in the area of L2 phonology acquisition and instruction.

Professor: Dr. Jessica Sturm

Course Texts:

Along with assorted research articles

MEETS T/TH 1:30-2:45

Questions? Contact Dr. Sturm, jsturm@purdue.edu